President Hopeful Meeting Will End Quickly; News Men Are Barred

BULLETIN

BERLIN, July 16—The first formal session of the Big Three conference, which had been expected today, was set for tomorrow. Premier Stalin's travel was seen as the only reason for the delay. Prime Minister Churchill called on President Truman this morning to pay his respects.

POTSDAM, July 16—The big three meet in this cradle of Prussianism today in a fateful conference that war-weary millions around the earth hoped would produce a plan for the swift defeat of Japan and the establishment of lasting peace.

Accompanied by their top military and diplomatic advisers, President Truman, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin come together for the first time in a heavily-guarded chamber in the picturesque palace of the late Kaiser Wilhelm.

Mr. Truman, confident and in excellent spirits after his eight-day sea voyage from Washington, was ready to brush aside as much formality as possible and get down to business immediately.

With his typical energy and "brass tacks" attitude, the President wanted to take up at once the lengthy agenda prepared by each of the participating nations.

His two main objectives frankly were a speedy end to the Pacific war and an agreement on the future world peace which would be at least the forerunner to a full-dress peace conference sometime after Japan's complete surrender.

The big three discussions were cloaked by a strictly-enforced censorship that even banned reporters from the immediate conference scene and the only current news while they last — perhaps three weeks or more — was expected to come from periodic official communiques.

But informed observers believed the agenda would cover at least these major topics:

1. Russia's plans in the Pacific and the results of her interrupted discussions with China.

2. The joint administration of Germany.

3. The reparations to be exacted from beaten Germany; whether in money, goods or manpower or all three. Russia reportedly is asking for 4,000,000 German men to rebuild her ruined cities.

4. Settlement of the various territorial claims now being advanced by France, Yugoslavia, Poland, Bulgaria, etc.

5. The Anglo-Russian conflict over middle eastern oil resources, including the tied-in problem of the Arab-Jewish impasse in Palestine.

6. Russian territorial demands (Continued on Page Two)

POLICE CAPTURE MAN WHO SHOT STATE TROOPER

EASTON, Pa., July 16—Ernest Rittenhouse, 30-year-old former mental patient who shot and killed a New Jersey state trooper, was captured today at nearby Martin's creek by Pennsylvania state police.

The lanky, six-footer war worker of Orange, N. J., surrendered shortly after dawn when police trapped him in the swamps along the Delaware river across from Phillipsburg, N. J.

Rittenhouse fled into the swamps yesterday after he fatally wounded Sgt. C. A. O'Donnell, 40, of the New Jersey state police who had picked him up for questioning in the axe-slaying of his wife.

ABOARD THE BATTLESHIP IOWA OFF MURORAN, July 15—(Delayed)—The mighty battlewagons of this task force have just sent 1,000 tons of shells crashing into the steel port of Muroran without a return shot, and the city is burning fiercely within 1,000 yards of our smoking guns.

The Iowa ran up its battle flag in full sight of the enemy and fired the first salvo at 9:37 a. m. Now, 62 minutes later, the cease fire signal has been hoisted and our warships are drawing off after throwing more than 800 rounds of 16-inch shells into the port.

It is incredible that we could venture this close to the enemy homeland without a fight. There is land to port, land dead ahead and land to starboard. There must be Japanese shore batteries on that land, but they aren't firing.

Not even an enemy pistol has been leveled at our warships, which include the battleships Wisconsin and Missouri as well as the Iowa. The main targets were the big iron and steel works at Muroran on the southern tip of Hokkaido. To get into firing position, we had to steam 125 miles into enemy waters between Hokkaido and Honshu, but we made it unchallenged.

Our gunners fired with deadly accuracy. How accurate can best be described in the words of aerial spotters flying over the target. Repeatedly they called back: "No change, no change," signifying that our salvos were on the target.

ALLIED TROOPS CLAMP ON TIGHT SECURITY RULES

POTSDAM, July 16—Security for the Big Three conference today is so elaborate that it took the chief security officer an hour to get through the barriers surrounding the conference area.

The official passes for the conference are the most elaborate ever used for such a meeting. The intricately designed cards bear the United States, British and Russian flags. They are carefully checked at each of the almost endless road barriers into the conference zone.

President Truman is abiding by an agreement with Russia and Britain that correspondents may not cover the conference physically.

The three White House press association reporters accompanying him are allowed to go with him on all journeys near Berlin. But they are prohibited from entering the conference area.

The White House reporters and all Allied correspondents are given free access to most parts of Potsdam.

Allied correspondents have been notified by Lieut. Col. John Redding, chief public relations officer at the Allied press camp, that they will be subjected to a 72-hour suspension "if you even attempt to approach the conference zone."

New Food Boss Shows Nation Something New In Way Of Quick Decisions

WASHINGTON, July 16—During his first two weeks in office as the nation's food boss, Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson has shown this capital something refreshingly new in the way of lightning decisions and two-fisted policies.

His associates are confident that his administration of the food program will justify the free hand given him by congress and the White House in attacking an extremely difficult problem.

His first personal report to the nation on food prospects will be delivered tonight through press and radio. It may not be as favorable a picture as Anderson believed when he took office a fortnight ago, largely because a newly reported drop in prospective feed supplies has upset plans for expanding livestock production.

Anderson has gone to work with the hope of avoiding the controversies which marked the path of his predecessors. But he has indicated, nevertheless, that he will not sidestep a fight if his programs are in danger.

For instance, Anderson informed the War Production Board that he believed the grain supply was too short to set any aside for use in making beverage alcohol. He indicated that his mind wasn't closed on the matter — but that the burden of proof was on the WPB.

The newly announced cut in butter ration points from 24 to 16 per pound is a result of Anderson's desire to move quickly when conditions warrant. When he came out for an immediate cut, OPA officials were inclined to delay; they said the mechanics of the ration program wouldn't permit a change in the middle of a ration period.

Anderson wanted to know why OPA, after considering the matter further, decided the cut could be made immediately after all.

Anderson's aides say the word "why" is the most frequent in his vocabulary and they attribute this to his early experience as a reporter. Officials now approach his conferences well armed with latest reports on the subject up for discussion.

At a recent session, Anderson asked an official for some information. The man said he'd have to get it from the field offices. The meeting went on. After a time, Anderson said: (Continued on Page Two)

B-29 'GHOST' IS HUNTED AFTER CREW BAILS OUT

GRAND RAPIDS, Minn., July 16—Authorities scanned the skies today for a B-29 "ghost plane" reportedly speeding westward after its entire crew bailed out to escape gasoline fumes—but not before throwing an unconscious airman overboard.

The superfortress, its automatic pilot subbing for its absent guide, carried 4,000 gallons of gasoline, enough to fly it to the Pacific ocean.

Ten of the B-29's 11-man crew parachuted from the plane when a leaky gas tank engulfed them in explosive fumes.

The decision to abandon ship was not made until one man already had been overcome. His parachute was rigged to open and he was tossed out. It was believed he revived before landing.

The men, picked up by forest rangers and farmers in the area near Napoleon and Bear Lakes in Northern Minnesota, told police they decided to jump when the fumes threatened to set the aircraft on fire.

Two of the airmen, including the unidentified crew member who was thrown from the plane, were injured slightly and taken to the Grand Rapids hospital. One reportedly hit a tree as he landed, suffering a bruised back, and the other cracked a foot bone. Both were expected to be discharged today.

Assault Goes Into 41st Day; Marines Seize Two More Invasion Islands

By United Press

The planes and guns of Admiral William F. Halsey's mighty Third fleet were apparently still lurking off Japan today, and the Japanese shivered with thoughts that the great bombardment might begin again any hour.

They have real reason for fear because in 48 hours Halsey's force wrecked 10 cities, destroyed or damaged 128 enemy ships and 92 planes, and virtually severed Hokkaido from the main Japanese island of Honshu.

Tokyo broadcasts reported 100 American fighters from Iwo Jima carried the assault on Japan into its 41st day today with a low-level strafing attack on the Nagoya area in southern Honshu.

Another enemy report said an American submarine had surfaced off the northern end of Honshu yesterday and shelled Shiriya on Shimokita peninsula.

B-29s In Action

Also a fleet of 50 to 75 B-29s, flying from the Marianas, dropped 250 tons of fire bombs on oil plants at Kudamatsu, on the southwest tip of Honshu, against scattered fighter opposition.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz disclosed that the U. S. second Marine division has seized two new invasion islands in the Ryukyus. Early in June they grabbed Iheya and Aguni, 301 miles from Kyushu, at a cost of two killed and 12 wounded.

This is the American forces' closest jumpoff point for any possible invasion of Japan.

3,000 Planes Ready

Lt. Gen. Barney M. Giles, former deputy commander of the 20th airforce, revealed that the new U. S. strategic airforce has taken over the strategic bombing of Japan and that 3,000 planes will be able to hit the home islands on 24 hours notice.

He said bombing efforts will be redoubled when the 8th airforce, using superforts, flying forts, and liberators, moves to bases on Okinawa and joins the 20th and 21st bomber commands in the battle.

From Chungking the Chinese announced that China's troops, driving toward the former American airbase town of Kweilin, had recaptured Huangming, 53 miles southwest, and Liuking, 60 miles southwest of Kweilin.

A communist paper reported that the Japanese in Shanghai are preparing the city for a street-by-street last-ditch fight.

96TH ASSEMBLY TO END SESSION ON THURSDAY

COLUMBUS, July 16 — Ohio's 96th General Assembly reconvenes here Thursday to end officially one of the longest sessions in recent years and take action on bills which Gov. Frank J. Lausche may veto.

At least four measures may be vetoed or changed by the governor before the legislature returns.

The most important of these was the $79,834,948 capital improvements bill earmarking funds for new state construction, parks and other additions and betterments as soon as manpower and materials are available.

Although this measure does not face an executive veto, Lausche may cut out several items under the law which permits the governor to veto parts of appropriation bills.

The governor particularly was studying increased allocations to local governments for new road construction and repairs.

Jap 'John Doe' Says War Will End Quickly When Allies Invade Homeland

NORTHERN LUZON, July 16—Just call him Jiro Akahashi, equivalent to America's "John Doe," but listen to what he had to say as he sat before his captors staring into space.

He was a Japanese officer, who probably would have committed suicide if malaria hadn't knocked him out, and he said:

"The sooner the Allies invade Japan proper the sooner the war will end. I don't think Japan can hold out long."

"Concentrated air attacks might bring her surrender ultimately but invasion is the only quick way to end the war."

Akahashi said he believed that practically all the Japanese now realize the war is lost despite their bold propaganda and that the Japanese military chiefs obviously erred when they thought it would take the United States eight months to switch Allied might to the Pacific once the European war was ended.

Akahashi said, "I know the Japanese people are praying for peace and hoping the war will end quickly. I see no immediate prospect of revolt but I think the Gumbatsu (military clique) will be gradually discredited."

He believes that Premier Kantaro Suzuki's leadership is a step in the right direction to end the war but predicted further changes in the government, possibly with an out-right pro-American premier such as the former United States ambassador, Yosuke Matsuoka or the former premier, Prince Konoye.

Akahashi holds the emperor blameless for the war and said

KUNMING, July 16—Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault, commander of the 14th airforce, prepared today to enter retirement for the second time after placing on record a vigorous attack upon critics of the Chinese government.

Speaking at a press conference at which his decision to retire was announced, Chennault said:

BRETTON WOODS DEBATE OPENS IN U. S. SENATE

WASHINGTON, July 16—Sen. Robert F. Wagner, D., N. Y., opened senate debate on the Bretton Woods monetary proposals today with a plea for prompt ratification.

He said their acceptance would "inform the world that we stand ready to cooperate in international economic matters." Together with the United Nations charter, he said, the proposals "lay a firm foundation for peace."

Wagner introduced the Bretton Woods proposals in his capacity as chairman of the senate banking committee.

Overwhelmingly adopted by the house, they provide for United States participation in $9,100,000,000 world bank and an $8,800,000,000 international monetary fund to help world reconstruction and development and to stabilize currencies.

Wagner told his colleagues the legislation now before them "will assist immeasurably in achieving the mutual assistance and general understanding among nations that are so essential to the establishment of an enduring and prosperous peace."

VINSON NAMED TO NEW POST

War Mobilizer Nominated By President Truman For Secretary Of Treasury

WASHINGTON, July 16—President Truman formally nominated Fred M. Vinson today to be secretary of treasury. No successor to Vinson as war mobilization and reconversion chief was named immediately.

Federal Loan Administrator John W. Snyder was most prominently mentioned to succeed Vinson as home front czar. Snyder, a close personal friend of Mr. Truman for 25 years, was appointed to the loan post when Vinson succeeded James F. Byrnes as war mobilizer. He formerly was vice president of the First National (Continued on Page Two)

SOLDIERS FACE HEARINGS AFTER BODY IS FOUND

COLUMBUS, July 16 — Two Lockbourne Army Air base sergeants were to receive hearings at the base today in connection with drowning of a 17-year-old girl during a swimming party.

The body of the girl, Ruth Farman, was recovered late last night from a clump of bushes in the Scioto river a few miles south of the point where she was swept over a dam July 2.

Mrs. Virginia Kay Harris, 22, the fourth member of the party, was being held on charges of contributing to the delinquency of a minor. Mrs. Harris said she did not know the girl was under age.

96TH ASSEMBLY TO END SESSION ON THURSDAY

COLUMBUS, July 16—Ohio's 96th General Assembly reconvenes here Thursday to end officially one of the longest sessions in recent years and take action on any bills which Gov. Frank J. Lausche may veto.

At least four measures may be vetoed or changed by the governor before the legislature returns.

The most important of these was the $79,834,948 capital improvements bill earmarking funds for new state construction, parks and other additions and betterments as soon as manpower and materials are available.

Although this measure does not face an executive veto, Lausche may cut out several items under the law which permits the governor to veto parts of appropriation bills.

The governor particularly was studying increased allocations to local governments for new road construction and repairs.

10 NIP CITIES LAID WASTE BY HALSEY'S UNITS

128 Enemy Ships, 92 Planes Destroyed Or Damaged; Hokkaido Isolated

Samarinda after capturing 200-foot mount Batochampan, five miles north of Balikpapan.
Upwards of 1,000 carrier planes were on the attack yesterday, blanketing the entire 3,400-square miles of Hokkaido. Official reports said they pounded Sendai on northeastern Honshu and Shibetsu on northern Hokkaido, while radio Tokyo volunteered the information that they also hit the Hokkaido centers of Hakodate, Otaru, Abashiri, Kushiro, Ashigawa and Obihiro.

Simultaneously, a powerful surface flotilla led by the 45,000-ton super-dreadnaught Iowa, Missouri and Wisconsin, steamed boldly into the landlocked port of Muroran on southern Hokkaido and battered the city at point-blank range for 62 minutes.

Moving within 1,000 yards of the port, the warships hurled more than 1,000 tons of shells into the city. They ripped apart the great Wanishi iron works and the Nison steel works and touched off leaping fires in the sprawling docks and factories along the waterfront, then steamed away without opposition.

The shelling duplicated a bombardment carried out by another task force less than 24 hours earlier against the Honshu port of Kamaishi, also an important steel center. The American gunners there pumped in 1,000 tons or more of shellfire and wrecked another big Japanese steel plant along with a large area of the city.

Dispatches from Halsey's fleet disclosed that his carriers had sunk ships, barges and small craft totaling 53,000 tons and damaged another 64 totaling 55,000 tons.

Among the wrecked vessels were six of the seven railroad ferries plying the coal, steel and iron route between Hokkaido's mines and blast furnaces and the war factories of Honshu.

In effect, the foray in the narrow Tsugaru straits severed direct communications between Honshu and Hokkaido.

Eighty-seven grounded Japanese planes were destroyed or damaged by the American navy fliers Saturday, and they were able to bring only five more Sunday, indicating the growing scarcity of enemy targets.

Since the Third fleet launched its strike against Japan last Tuesday with a 1,000-plane raid on the Tokyo area, Halsey's raiders destroyed or damaged a total of 434 planes—all but three on the ground.

Supporting the fleet strikes, other American planes from Okinawa and Iwo Jima continued the neutralization campaign against the Japanese air bases on Kyushu and Honshu yesterday. Tokyo said more than 270 planes carried out the attack.

One flight of 100 Iwo-based Mustang fighters bagged 37 Japanese planes in a low-level sweep over airfields in the Nagoya area. They described Nagoya, once the third city of Japan with a population of more than 1,000,000 as a heap of red dust marked by an occasional chimney sticking up from the ruins.

AUTOS COLLIDE

Both cars were damaged slightly Sunday afternoon in a collision at the corner of Court and Mound street, police reported. Ralph P. Judge, soldier driving the car of Bessie Kennedy, East Main street and the car driven by Arnold Dean, Wheelersburg, W. Va. collided at the intersection. Mrs. Dean and two children were riding in the Dean car with the driver. No one was injured.

POST-WAR FARMER, TOO, WILL FIND LIFE EASIER WITH NEW GADGETS TO HELP HIM

ROTOTILLER—Power-driven, this new farm mechanism prepares the ground for planting in single operation.

By KEN WOODMAN
Central Press Correspondent
LUCAS, O.—Here, almost within sight of Novelist Louis Bromfield's famed Malabar farm, is a good place to speculate on the post-war future of farming.

Bromfield's efforts to make his neighbors—and the nation—soil conservation conscious are well known. Less familiar are some of the mechanical improvements expected on American farms.

For example, there is the rototiller. This is a Swiss invention now being manufactured in the United States. It prepares the ground for planting in a single operation, combining the work of disk, plow and harrow. Rotating steel tines crumble the soil and mix fertilizer and cover crops uniformly into the seed bed.

Power-driven, the implement is a cultivator, furrower, compactor and mower combined.

Still more spectacular is the "flame weeder." This modified flame-thrower is expected to substitute for the hoe in tending some crops, notably cotton, sugar cane, and corn. Its backers claim it will burn away weeds and leave the crops unharmed. They anticipate that it will "chop" (thin) cotton plants at a cost of 47 cents per acre compared with $8.50 for manual chopping.

Of greater interest to Bromfield, however, are farming methods. He recalls that he helped popularize Edward Faulkner's provocative book, "Plowman's Folly," which advocates shallow tillage. After the war, farmers hereabouts are expected to see a number of new implements on the market which carry out this principle.

Opposite Theory
From the south has come advocacy of almost the opposite theory—use of the so-called "bull-tongued scooter" which cuts a deep, narrow furrow barely disturbing fertilizing refuse left to cover the topsoil. There may well be "bull-tongued scooters" on the market soon, too.

Planes are already being used, particularly in the west, for some farm transportation and mass spraying of crops. This can be expected to increase.

When it comes to new-fangled sprays developed during the war, farmers in this area are inclined to go slow. They are afraid the new "dope" may kill beneficial earthworms, for instance, or bees which help pollinate their crops.

But the new sprays are going to be on the market just the same. One which has had wide publicity, of course, is DDT. Claims are made for it that it will destroy potato beetles, Japanese beetles, cabbage worms, corn borers, apple codling moths and fruit worms. It will also kill mosquito larvae.

However, what interests local farmers most in DDT is that it is fatal to aphids. These little green "lice" have invaded not only this area but most of northern Ohio this year and are wreaking wide damage, particularly on cherry trees. They even live the underside of shrubs and tiny daisies growing along the roadsides.

Lucas farmers hope that one imminent event will be the unconditional surrender of the aphids.

Deaths and Funerals

GROVER E. BOYER
Grover E. Boyer, 60, former sexton of Maplehill cemetery, Stoutsville, died Monday at 1 a. m. at his home, East Franklin street.

He was a native of Pickaway county and was the son of Albert and Mary Dunkle Boyer and at the time of his death was an employee of the John W. Eschelman Sons Company.

He is survived by his widow, Agnes Eldridge Accord and four daughters by a previous marriage; Mrs. Clarence Smith, Columbus; Mrs. Raymond Mansberger, Grove City; Mrs. Martin Taylor, and Mrs. Nelson Abel, Lancaster; five grandchildren, two sisters, Mrs. George Young, East High street; Mrs. William Seymour, Wayne township; three brothers, Thomas, Wayne township; Amos, Columbus and Sheridan, Springfield.

Funeral arrangements in charge of the Defenbaugh funeral home will be announced later.

CLARA ELLEN MACKLIN
Clara Ellen Macklin, 80, died at her home in Tarlton at 6:30 a. m. Monday. She was born September 22, 1864 in Tarlton, the daughter of Henry Mowery and Isabel Odafew Mowery, who preceded her in death. She was married to Clay Macklin, who also preceded her in death.

Surviving are two brothers, James Mowery, superintendent of the county home, and Robert Mowery, Upper Arlington; two sisters, Mrs. Frank Hedges, Amanda R. F. D., and Mrs. Orman Bright, Tarlton.

Friends may call at the Bright residence in Tarlton, Tuesday evening. Services will be conducted Wednesday 3:30 p. m. in the Tarlton Presbyterian church by the Rev. Mr. Drumm. Burial will be in the Tarlton cemetery by the Defenbaugh funeral home.

ATER FUNERAL

Services for Mrs. Ora Alice Ater will be conducted Tuesday 3 p. m. at the Methodist church in Williamsport. The Rev. R. S. Meyer will officiate and burial will be at the Spring Lawn cemetery in Williamsport. The C. E. Hill funeral home is in charge of arrangements.

MRS. JOSEPH BRADY

Mary Jane Brady, 71, wife of Joseph Brady, died unexpectedly at her home, 122 East Water street, at 1 p. m. Sunday. She and Mr. Brady were preparing to go to the home of a son, Pearl, Renick avenue, when she was stricken with a fatal heart attack. Dr. V. D. Kerns attended her but she died shortly after his arrival.

She was a native of Hocking county and was the daughter of Albert and Catharine Davis. Besides her husband she is survived by seven sons, Homer, Lockbourne; Roy, Jamestown; Ward, Xenia; Lewis, Wayne township; Harry, Columbus; Merle, Cleveland; and Pearl; four daughters,

The report also recommended early amendment of the fair labor standards (wage-hour) act to raise the present statutory minimum wage of 40 cents an hour.

Mrs. Myrtle May, Marion; Mrs. Lucy Brown, West Ohio street; Mrs. Orvaline Hayne and Mrs. Dorothy Lemings, Columbus; 29 grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren; a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Edgington, West Corwin street, and a brother, Otis Davis, Columbus.

Funeral services will be held at the Defenbaugh chapel, Wednesday at 1:30 p. m., the Rev. C. A. Way officiating with burial in Hill-Ludwig cemetery. Friends may call at the home after Monday night until Wednesday noon.

SAMUEL C. HUMMEL

Samuel Charles Hummel, 90, farmer, former resident of Madison township, died Monday at the Pickaway county home where he had been a rest home resident.

He was a member of St. Paul's Lutheran church, Madison township, and is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Harry K. Wright, Elmira, New York; a sister, Mrs. Fred Ebert, New Holland; three nephews, John D. Hummel, East Mound street; Russell Ebert, New Holland, and Dr. G. R. Gardner, Ashville.

Funeral services in charge of the Defenbaugh Funeral Home are incomplete.

WARNER FUNERAL

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. Tuesday for Samuel Lawrence Warner, 63, who was found dead in bed at his home Saturday. Mr. Warner, who had been manager of the Pickaway Grain company for the past 17 years, was very prominent in church and lodge work.

At the time of his death he was a trustee of St. Paul's Evangelical church of Washington township which he had served for a number of years as Sunday school superintendent, a chairman of the board of trustees of the Grand Lodge, Knights of Pythias of the State of Ohio, keeper of records and seals of Philo lodge, 64, Knights of Pythias, Circleville, a member of D O K K Bakoo temple, 28, Columbus. He also was an active member of the Washington Grange and of the local Rotary club.

The funeral will be held at St. Paul's Evangelical church in Washington township with the Rev. Calvin Morehead, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in Forest cemetery.

Mr. Warner was twice married. His first wife, Mrs. Dora Leist

LASTING PEACE MAY BE PLANNED AT CONFERENCE

War-Wearry Millions Hope Allied Leaders Can Plan Early End Of War

on Turkey and the Soviet request for revision of the Montreux agreement of 1936, under which the Turks were permitted to fortify the Dardanelles.

7. Reorganization of the Soviet-sponsored Austrian government, which Britain and the United States have refused to recognize.

8. The still-unresolved question of the hundreds of thousands of Polish troops who have reiterated their loyalty to the defunct exile government in London and have refused to return to Poland.

More remote is the possible discussion of a Russian seat on the control board of the Suez canal and future joint control of the Panama canal, which neither Britain nor the United States is likely to concede.

DeGaulle May Be Called
The Levant states' demand for complete independence from France also may come before the big three, although in the light of French resentment at Gen. Charles de Gaulle's exclusion from the conference no definitive action on that point appeared likely.

(Unconfirmed press reports reaching London said De Gaulle might be invited to join the conference later.)

Mr. Truman did not see Churchill before the formal opening of the conference, despite earlier reports that he and the British leader would hold a preliminary discussion on their mutual problems.

The President stepped down the gangway of the U. S. cruiser Augusta at Antwerp at 11:10 a. m. Sunday, (5:10 a. m. EDT), to become the first chief executive to set foot on western European soil since Woodrow Wilson went to Paris 26 years ago for the peace that failed.

'He' Meets President

Accompanied by Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, Fleet Admiral William F. Leahy and a small party of advisers, the smiling man from Missouri was met by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Admiral Harold R. Stark, Charles Sawyer, U. S. ambassador to Belgium, and local British and American military commanders.

Wearing a double-breasted gray business suit and grey felt hat, Mr. Truman conducted a brief inspection of an honor guard from the 35th division, his world war one outfit.

Then the presidential party motored to the Melsbroeck airfield and Mr. Truman boarded Eisenhower's special plane, arriving in Belgium at 4:15 p. m. (10:15 a. m. EDT.) At Potsdam, he was greeted by Soviet Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's deputy, General Alexander Sokolovsky, and Col. Gen. Alexander Gorbatov, Red army commander of Berlin.

American, British and Russian tanks and infantrymen surrounded the entire airfield sector and banned all but the official military photographers.

Stepping spryly down the transport plane ladder, Mr. Truman shook hands cordially with the Russian envoys and received the presidential honors from a color guard of the U. S. second armored division.

Immediately after the arrival ceremonies, he was whisked 15 miles away to his official residence, a 30-room house expropriated from a wealthy Berliner and furnished by the Red army, within 10 minutes' drive of the meeting place.

Churchill, Stalin Arrive

Churchill, fresh from a week-long vacation in southern France, flew into Potsdam about two hours after the President, accompanied by his daughter, Mary.

Beyond the fact that Stalin and his foreign commissar, Vyacheslav Molotov, had arrived in Berlin.

Warner was killed in an automobile accident about five years ago. Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Ida Compton Warner; two sons, Melvin Warner of the home and Pvt. Oakley J. Warner, of Fort Sill, Oklahoma, and a daughter, Mrs. Oral Storts, Groveport, and three grandsons.

Friends may call at the Defenbaugh funeral home until time for the services, Tuesday.

The Pickaway Grain company's elevator will be closed at noon Tuesday to permit employees to attend the funeral.

Members of Philo Lodge K. of P. will go to the Defenbaugh funeral home to view the body of their late brother at 8:30 p. m. Monday.

damage" and said the areas were "thoroughly gone over."

Our ten-ton broadsides touched off a terrific explosion in the Nison steel works. The Wanishi iron works and the Mitsubishi coal factory were wrecked. When we first peered out through the murky morning we could see numerous buildings and towering smokestacks. Now there is only smoke, fire and devastation in Muroran, once a city of 107,000.

The bombardment was so powerful that even the Iowa shuddered when the guns of the other battleships went off.

When our 16-inch guns let loose I bounced on the steel deck like a jumping jack.

While the surface units were pounding Muroran, carrier planes were continuing their strikes on the Japanese home islands. One pilot, Lt. (jg) Jerome Lawrence, was forced down by a Japanese plane, but he landed in the water.

There was no official word on the whereabouts or doings of the Russian delegation in advance of the meeting.

For the Soviet premier it was his first trip outside Russia since the Tehran meeting with Churchill and the late President Roosevelt in November, 1943, and it was his first public visit to Germany in his career.

Mr. Truman was hopeful that the entire world could be given a fairly comprehensive picture of the day-to-day negotiations and said he favored issuance of regular communiques during the discussions.

Anderson turned to the official with, "I thought you were going to check the field offices."

In the past, inability of the War Food Administration and the OPA to agree has led to long delays. Arbitration was left to economic stabilization director William H. Davis. Anderson's attitude is "what waste time? let's get together on this now."

Anderson's schedule thus far has been jammed with appointments with congressmen, senators, food industry groups and others with individual food problems. Of greater interest to Bromfield, however, are farming methods. He recalls that he helped popularize Edward Faulkner's provocative book, "Plowman's Folly," which advocates shallow tillage. After the war, farmers hereabouts are expected to see a number of new implements on the market which carry out this principle.

Opposite Theory
From the south has come advocacy of almost the opposite theory—use of the so-called "bull-tongued scooter" which cuts a deep, narrow furrow barely disturbing fertilizing refuse left to cover the topsoil. There may well be "bull-tongued scooters" on the market soon, too.

Planes are already being used, particularly in the west, for some farm transportation and mass

spraying of crops. This can be expected to increase.

When it comes to new-fangled sprays developed during the war, farmers in this area are inclined to go slow. They are afraid the new "dope" may kill beneficial earthworms, for instance, or bees which help pollinate their crops.

But the new sprays are going to be on the market just the same. One which has had wide publicity, of course, is DDT. Claims are made for it that it will destroy the potato beetles, Japanese beetles, cabbage worms, corn borers, apple codling moths and fruit worms. It will also kill mosquito larvae.

However, what interests local farmers most in DDT is that it is fatal to aphids. These little green "lice" have invaded not only this year but most of northern Ohio this year and are wreaking wide damage, particularly on cherry trees. They even line the undersides of shrubs and tiny daisies growing along the roadsides.

Lucas farmers hope that one imminent event will be the unconditional surrender of the aphids.

Deaths and Funerals

GROVER E. BOYER
Grover E. Boyer, 60, former sexton of Maplehill cemetery, Stoutsville, died Monday at 1 a. m. at his home, East Franklin street.

He was a native of Pickaway county and was the son of Albert and Mary Dunkle Boyer and at the time of his death was an employee of the John W. Eschelman Sons Company.

He is survived by his widow, Agnes Eldridge Accord and four daughters by a previous marriage; Mrs. Clarence Smith, Columbus; Mrs. Raymond Mansberger, Grove City; Mrs. Martin Taylor, and Mrs. Nelson Abel, Lancaster; five grandchildren, two sisters, Mrs. George Young, East High street; Mrs. William Seymour, Wayne township; three brothers, Thomas, Wayne township; Amos, Columbus and Sheridan, Springfield.

Funeral arrangements in charge of the Defenbaugh funeral home will be announced later.

CLARA ELLEN MACKLIN
Clara Ellen Macklin, 80, died at her home in Tarlton at 6:30 a. m. Monday. She was born September 22, 1864 in Tarlton, the daughter of Henry Mowery and Isabel Odafur Mowery, who preceded her in death. She was married to Clay Macklin, who also preceded her in death.

Surviving are two brothers, James Mowery, superintendent of the county home, and Robert Mowery, Upper Arlington; two sisters, Mrs. Frank Hedges, Amanda R. F. D., and Mrs. Orman Bright, Tarlton.

Friends may call at the Bright residence in Tarlton, Tuesday evening. Services will be conducted Wednesday 3:30 p. m. in the Tarlton Presbyterian church by the Rev. Mr. Drumm. Burial will be in the Tarlton cemetery by the Defenbaugh funeral home.

ATER FUNERAL
Services for Mrs. Ora Alice Ater will be conducted Tuesday 3 p. m. at the Methodist church in Williamsport. The Rev. R. S. Meyer will officiate and burial will be at the Spring Lawn cemetery in Williamsport. The C. E. Hill funeral home is in charge of arrangements.

MRS. JOSEPH BRADY
Mary Jane Brady, 71, wife of Joseph Brady, died unexpectedly at her home, 122 East Water street, at 1 p. m. Sunday. She and Mr. Brady were preparing to go to the home of a son, Pearl, Renick avenue, when she was stricken with a fatal heart attack. Dr. V. D. Kerns attended her but she died shortly after his arrival.

She was a native of Hocking county and was the daughter of Albert and Catharine Davis.

Besides her husband she is survived by seven sons, Homer, Lockbourne; Roy, Jamestown; Ward, Xenia; Lewis, Wayne township; Harry, Columbus; Merle, Cleveland, and Pearl; four daughters, dustry without substantially affecting current profit levels and in most instances within the limits of existing price ceilings," the subcommittee said.

The report also recommended early amendment of the fair labor standards (wage-hour) act to raise the present statutory minimum wage of 40 cents an hour.

Mrs. Myrtle May, Marion; Mrs. Lucy Brown, West Ohio street; Mrs. Orvaline Hayne and Mrs. Dorothy Lemings, Columbus; 29 grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren; a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Edgington, West Corwin street, and a brother, Otis Davis, Columbus.

Funeral services will be held at the Defenbaugh chapel, Wednesday at 1:30 p. m., the Rev. C. A. Way officiating with burial in Hiller-Ludwig cemetery. Friends may call at the home after Monday night until Wednesday noon.

SAMUEL C. HUMMEL
Samuel Charles Hummel, 90, farmer, former resident of Madison township, died Monday at the Pickaway county home where he had been a rest home resident.

He was a member of St. Paul's Lutheran church, Madison township, and is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Harry K. Wright, Elmira, New York; a sister, Mrs. Fred Ebert, New Holland; three nephews, John D. Hummel, East Mound street; Russell Ebert, New Holland, and Dr. G. R. Gardner, Ashville.

Funeral services in charge of the Defenbaugh Funeral Home are incomplete.

WARNER FUNERAL
Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. Tuesday for Samuel Lawrence Warner, 63, who was found dead in bed at his home Saturday. Mr. Warner, who had been manager of the Pickaway Grain company for the past 17 years, was very prominent in church and lodge work.

At the time of his death he was a trustee of St. Paul's Evangelical church of Washington township which he had served for a number of years as Sunday school superintendent, a chairman of the board of trustees of the Grand Lodge, Knights of Pythias of the State of Ohio, keeper of records and seals of Pythias, Circleville, a member of D O K K Bakoo temple, 28, Columbus. He also was an active member of the Washington Grange and of the local Rotary club.

The funeral will be held at St. Paul's Evangelical church in Washington township with the Rev. Calvin Morehead, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in Forest cemetery.

Mr. Warner was twice married. His first wife, Mrs. Dora Leist

LASTING PEACE MAY BE PLANNED AT CONFERENCE

War-Weary Millions Hope Allied Leaders Can Plan Early End Of War

on Turkey and the Soviet request for revision of the Montreux agreement of 1936, under which the Turks were permitted to fortify the Dardanelles.

7. Reorganization of the Soviet-sponsored Austrian government, which Britain and the United States have refused to recognize.

8. The still-unresolved question of the hundreds of thousands of Polish troops who have reiterated their loyalty to the defunct exile government in London and have refused to return to Poland.

More remote is the possible discussion of a Russian seat on the control board of the Suez canal and future joint control of the Panama canal, which neither Britain nor the United States is likely to concede.

DeGaulle May Be Called
The Levant states' demand for complete independence from France also may come before the big three, although in the light of French resentment at Gen. Charles de Gaulle's exclusion from the conference no definitive action on that point appeared likely.

(Unconfirmed press reports reaching London said De Gaulle might be invited to join the conference later.)

Mr. Truman did not see Churchill before the formal opening of the conference, despite earlier reports that he and the British leader would hold a preliminary discussion on their mutual problems.

The President stepped down the gangway of the U. S. cruiser Augusta at Antwerp at 11:10 a. m. Sunday, (5:10 a. m. EWT), to become the first chief executive to set foot on western European soil since Woodrow Wilson went to Paris 26 years ago for the peace that failed.

'Roe' Meets President
Accompanied by Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, Fleet Admiral William F. Leahy and a small party of advisers, the smiling man from Missouri was met by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Admiral Harold R. Stark, Charles Sawyer, U. S. ambassador to Belgium, and local British and American military commanders.

Wearing a double-breasted gray business suit and grey felt hat, Mr. Truman conducted a brief inspection of an honor guard from the 35th division, his world war one outfit.

Then the presidential party motored to the Melsbroeck airbase on the outskirts of Brussels and Mr. Truman boarded Eisenhower's special plane, arriving in Potsdam at 4:15 p. m. (10:15 a. m. EWT).

At Potsdam, he was greeted by Soviet Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's deputy, General Alexander Sokolovsky, and Col. Gen. Alexander Gorbatov, Red army commander of Berlin.

American, British and Russian tanks and infantrymen surrounded the entire airfield sector and banned all but the official military photographers.

Stepping spryly down the transport plane ladder, Mr. Truman shook hands cordially with the Russian envoys and received the presidential honors from a color guard of the U. S. second armored division.

Immediately after the arrival ceremonies, he was whisked 15 miles away to his official residence, a 30-room house expropriated from a wealthy Berliner and furnished by the Red army, within 10 minutes' drive of the meeting place.

Churchill, Stalin Arrive
Churchill, fresh from a week-long vacation in southern France, flew into Potsdam about two hours after the President, accompanied by his daughter, Mary.

Beyond the fact that Stalin and his foreign commissar, Vyacheslav Molotov, had arrived in Berlin.

Warner, was killed in an automobile accident about five years ago. Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Ida Compton Warner; two sons, Melvin Warner of the home and Pvt. Oakley J. Warner, of Fort Sill, Oklahoma, and a daughter, Mrs. Oral Storts, Groveport, and three grandsons.

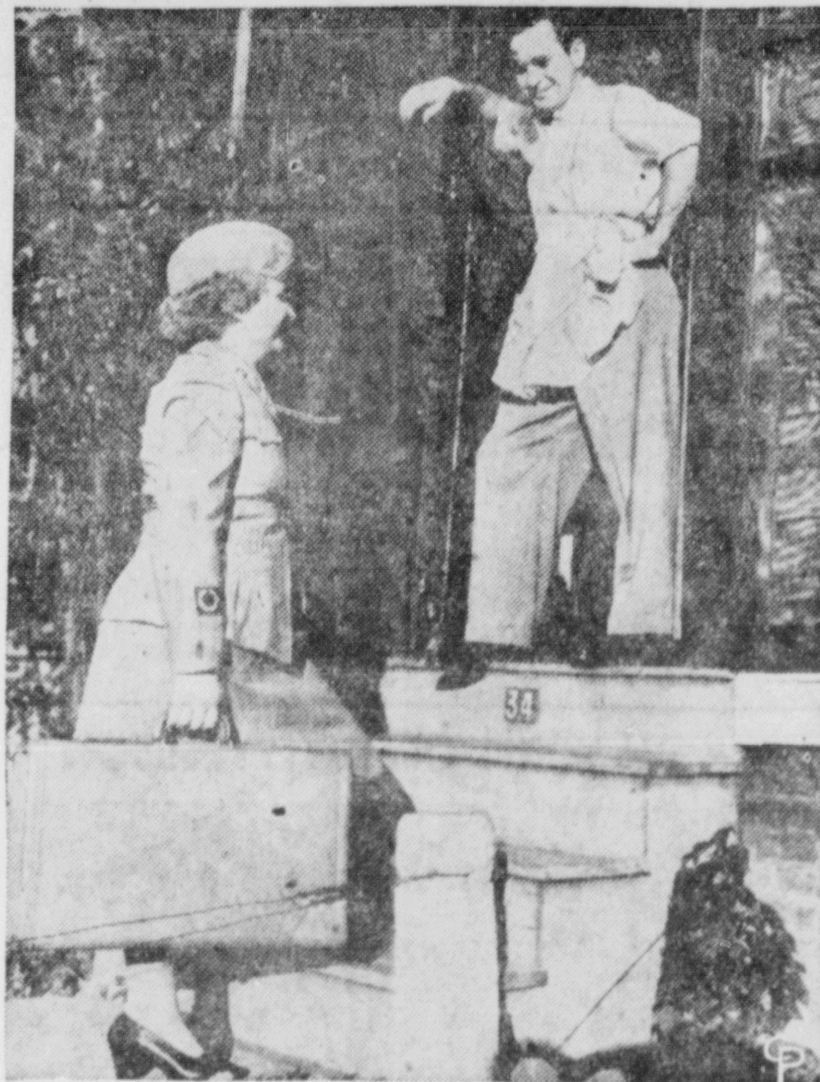

Friends may call at the Defenbaugh funeral home until time for the services, Tuesday.

The Pickaway Grain company's elevator will be closed at noon Tuesday to permit employees to attend the funeral.

Members of Philos Lodge K. of P. will go to the Defenbaugh Funeral Home to view the body of their late brother at 8:30 p. m. Monday.

"HELLO, DEAR--WELCOME HOME"

REVERSAL OF THE USUAL soldier homecoming scene is enacted here as apron-clad John Clauser, discharged veteran of the 34th division, welcomes his wife, Charlotte, to their home in Milltown, N. J. Mrs. Clauser, formerly a WAC private, is the first enlisted woman to be discharged from the New York port of debarkation under a recently announced Army-Navy policy to release wives of discharged vets from service.

damage" and said the areas were "thoroughly gone over."

Our ten-ton broadsides touched off a terrific explosion in the Nison steel works. The Wanishi iron works and the Mitsubishi coal factory were wrecked. When we first peered out through the murky morning we could see numerous buildings and towering smokestacks. Now there is only smoke, fire and devastation in Muroran, once a city of 107,000.

The bombardment was so powerful that even the Iowa shuddered when the guns of the other battleships went off.

When our 16-inch guns let loose I bounced on the steel deck like a jumping jack.

While the surface units were pounding Muroran, carrier planes were continuing their strikes on the Japanese home islands. One pilot, Lt. (jg) Jerome Lawrence, was forced down by a Japanese plane, but he landed in the water.

There was no official word on the whereabouts or doings of the Russian delegation in advance of the meeting.

For the Soviet premier it was his first trip outside Russia since the Tehran meeting with Churchill and the late President Roosevelt in November, 1943, and it was the first public visit to Germany in his career.

Mr. Truman was hopeful that the entire world could be given a fairly comprehensive picture of the day-to-day negotiations and said he favored issuance of regular communiques during the discussions.

Amazing Discovery
In a Hearing Aid

A big improvement has been made in a hearing aid now welcomed by thousands. It is a new hearing aid that does not require separate battery pack, battery wire, battery case or garment to bulge or weigh you down. So small it fits the palm of the hand. About one-half the weight and bulk of most hearing aids. The tone is natural, noiseless, clear and powerful. The makers of Beltone, Dept. 781, 847 Jackson Blvd., Chicago 7, Ill., are so proud of their achievement that they will gladly send free descriptive booklet and explain how you may get a full demonstration of this remarkable hearing device in your own home without risking a penny. A class composed of two year old daughters of the famous Guernsey sire, Langwater Forward, will provide the feature of the forthcoming Central Ohio Guernsey Field Day and Judging School, to be held Thursday, July 26, on W. W. McKittrick and Son's Welcome-In Farm, located northwest of Columbus on Bethel Road.

Langwater Forward enjoys the unique distinction of having changed hands twice within twelve months for the record breaking figure of $15,000. He was used as a herd sire at Welcome-In Farm for seven years before being sold privately in July, 1944, to L. J. Drake, Plano, Illinois, for $15,000. In May of this year the Drake herd was dispersed at auction and Forward was brought back into

There are over sixty of Forward's daughters remaining at Welcome-In Farm, and the best of them have been selected to make up the class for the judging contest. In addition, three classes will feature daughters of Langwater Chum, the successor to Forward at Welcome-In, whose progeny have attracted wide attention.

The day's events will begin promptly at 10:00 a. m. with registration, and the first class in the judging contest, that of three year old Chum daughters, will follow at 11:30. At 12:30 a picnic will be held to which visitors are expected to bring their own basket lunches. Refreshments will be provided by the local association.

At 1:30 the judging contest will be resumed with three additional classes passing before the contestants. The three highest scoring individuals in the junior and senior divisions will receive prizes ranging from a tattoo outfit for calves to a model Guernsey cow.

The Field Day and Judging School is an annual event sponsored by the South Central Ohio Guernsey Breeders' Association and is open to the public without charge.

NATIONAL ECONOMY

SOONER or later the need for sharp retrenchment in federal spending will be a political issue which can not be avoided. Conservative forces are looking to President Truman to put the brakes on domestic spending policies of recent years, for which the former administration was frequently held responsible.

Senator Byrd, the Virginia Democrat who has long been the chief agitator for federal economy, points out that while the federal debt was less than 60 billion dollars before Pearl Harbor, the statutory debt limit of 300 billion dollars will be reached before the end of 1946.

In September of 1939, there were 940,133 federal employees at a total annual pay of $1,598,264,000. On March 31, 1945, the number of government employees had jumped to 3,443,192 at an aggregate pay of between six and seven billion dollars. Senator Byrd estimates that the tax load of supporting federal employees is now $33.55 for every man, woman and child in the United States. And conservative politicians are guessing that this burden is bound to bring about a political revolution which will change the complexion of the federal government.

This is all true, but there is one point which they may have overlooked. Many of these employees are in the war and navy departments, or the various wartime agencies like the ODT, the WPB and the OPA. Their jobs should disappear, just as the debt will stop its rapid rise, when the war ends. For war itself is the most expensive action known to man or government.

VIRTUES OF SILENCE

IT is truly surprising how the act of taking up a book and setting to read can provoke some people to interrupt at once, and freely, with anything which comes into their heads.

Perhaps this springs from the notion of practical folk that reading really isn't very valuable, and that therefore a person who picks up a book has forfeited any right to respectful silence.

Such interrupting, however, may grow less and less important. In this radio age, many readers get the habit of applying one part of their minds to listening and another to following the printed page. With increased practice in this trick of double attention, the reader should be able to take on a third act—that of listening on the side to the casual interrupter.

The war has not made so much difference in American life after all. The returning G. I. will find nothing more natural than both Philadelphia teams in last place.

Japan is said to be "angling for peace," but will find none until she is dangling at the end of a rope.

Writer Thinks Arnolds
Will Miss Public Life

Thoughts on Departure
Of Roberts and Hopkins

By HELEN ESSARY
Central Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Can't make up my mind whether or not it was smart for Thurman Arnold to resign as justice of the United States court of appeals to go into private law practice with $25,000 a year retainer.

Undoubtedly there is a greater financial future in private law practice than in sitting on the honorable court, but I hate to see a personality as vivid as the Wyoming professor hidden in a commonplace job.

It was so entertaining to watch the brilliant Arnold throw himself dramatically at trust busting and a dozen other crusades. Arnold and his charming Frances will soon be bored outside the aura of official life.

Some people say the resignation of the justice is a step back to Wyoming and the race for a senatorship from Laramie. I am inclined to believe this possibility. I can't imagine Thurman, with his feet on a desk, behind a legal shingle-on-the-door, patiently waiting for clients to ask for advice.

Thurman Arnold • I'LL MISS THE NEWLY-RESIGNED Justice Owen Roberts sitting on the supreme court in an antechamber. I'll also miss meeting the justice, with his grandchildren, in the elevator of our apartment building. The last time I saw Mrs. Roberts she had paused in the apartment lobby to help Betty Fulbright, wife of the Arkansas senator, adjust roller skates on the Fulbright daughters. I was on my way to a newspaper tea in honor of Mrs. Truman.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, July 16—The Berlin conference, of Messrs. Truman, Churchill and Stalin at the head of substantial entourages, will be long and thorough.

Those who left here early, including Joseph Davies (who seems to be a sort of new Harry Hopkins to Mr. Truman on Russia) made plans to be away a month. Inner plans call for Mr. Truman's return about August 15.

What will be the subject for discussion is a matter of common popular speculation, the commonest and most popular running to international diplomatic crisis on the front pages. Last week's crisis was Turkey. This week added Tangiers and Berlin food, a few weeks earlier it was Syria, and so on.

For many generations Britain has been accustomed to a diplomatic crisis a week, sometimes two in good weeks, our venture into world leadership has, for the first apparent result, plunged us into the realm of succeeding, endless crisis in one part of the world or another.

My guess is that the handling of whatever crisis are uppermost in the news of the moment may dominate the reports from the conference, but not the conference. But that to be successful, the meeting itself must deal inevitably with what causes all these crises, and eliminate the causes.

The new President, Mr. Truman, and his new State Secretary Byrnes are being sent on their way with the private senatorial comment that they are not men "accustomed to giving things away." To this observation, one senator has rejoined:

"Yes but we have nothing to give away."

This may be somewhat true in a territorial sense, but in a more accurate consideration we have the entire world to give away. We can give away other nations quite freely. The truth is we have leadership to assert.

The cause of these crises is a developing imperialist policy by Russia. Her army occupation of European territory was blocked off from all news, by Moscow, for several weeks after the surrender, until a few days ago.

The commonly ascribed reason for our exclusion, as offered authoritatively, but privately, here, is that Russia wished to liquidate all her enemies in those nations before letting us even into Berlin.

Along with this development, Russia has pursued a policy of extension of her borders, starting before her invasion by Hitler, by taking half of Poland, then afterward taking it all into her sphere of influence, completely liquidating Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania, getting back Carpatho-Ukraine from Czechoslovakia, slicing off a piece of Finland, demanding provinces from neutral Turkey, and so on.

This aggrandizement of territory has been based on the policy of taking any loose adjoining territory for which a historical justification of old time Russian ownership might be offered. (Hitler, you may remember, did it that way for a while—Rhine land, Austria, Danzig, etc.)

Where does this stop? If Russia turns next to Asia, despite any temporary or tentative understandings with T. V. Soong on joining us as an ally, will she demand territory formerly lost to Japan, and go back into history far enough to find grounds for encroaching upon Asia, step by step, crisis by crisis, in coming months or years?

Uses of Sulfonamide Drugs

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

CERTAIN new methods of treatment have done much to bring relief to patients suffering from various disorders of the nose, throat and ears. These include the use of sulfonamide drugs, substances which stop the growth of germs, such as typhoid and penicillin and the use of a radioactive gas called radon.

According to Doctors Samuel J. Crowe and Arthur T. Ward, Jr., of Baltimore, one of the valuable sulfonamide preparations to use in the nose is sulfadiazine solution. This solution they find, is non-irritating and is valuable in treating infections of the throat, the nose and the ear, particularly when they are due to certain kinds of streptococcus germs.

Treating Colds

In treating colds, this solution has no effect on the virus which produces colds but does stop the growth of or kill the germs which are found in the nose and throat and which tend to prolong the symptoms of a cold. These physicians think that by the use of this solution in the nose, the duration of sneezing and nasal discharge can be lessened, that the disagreeable symptoms of a cold may be cut and complications, such as ear and sinus infections prevented.

Typhoid is a substance which comes from a germ known as the Bacillus brevis. Typhoid is used in the form of a solution. It can be injected into a vein or under the skin, but when applied locally in the nose, it has valuable effects, just as do solutions or suspensions of the sulfonamide drugs. Penicillin, on the other hand, may not only be applied locally, but may be given by injection.

Kill Streptococci

Doctors Crowe and Ward found that typhoidin and penicillin inhibit the growth of or kill most kinds of streptococci, staphylococci, pneumococci. They suggest washing out infected sinuses with solutions of these preparations. They believe also that these solutions can be used with benefit in operations on the nose and throat in keeping infections from occurring, and lessening pain, swelling and discharge.

These doctors have found the radon gas useful in treating certain conditions which are contributory to deafness. In order to have good hearing, the eustachian tubes, which lead from the throat to the ear, must be open. Blocking of these tubes may be produced by adenoid tissue in the upper part of the throat. The radon gas will destroy this adenoid tissue. They have found this method of treatment especially useful in children.

As these various methods of treatment are more widely applied in nose, throat and ear disorders, it is probable that additional uses for them will be found.

CHAPTER FORTY-TWO

THE NEXT day Jim and Terry were just finishing their luncheon at the Plaza hotel. Terry glanced at her watch and looked across the table to smile at Jim.

"I want you to do something for me," she said.

"Certainly, dear," Jim nodded.

"Fitz' plane arrives at the airport in just one hour. I want you to meet him with me."

"But you don't want me along," Jim protested. "You Norte Americans don't need chaperones, and anyway, I'm sure your young man would much prefer meeting you alone."

"You don't know Fitz?" Terry laughed. "It wouldn't bother him. In fact, he'd love it. How else can I prove to him that I actually DO know a real Argentine estancia owner?"

"Exhibit A," Jim smiled to herself. "Certainly I'll go, if you really want me."

They stood at the gates marked, "To Planes," while a trickle of passengers came through from the Clipper. Terry, on tiptoes, was straining to see over the heads of the little group that were waiting to meet the incoming plane. After the last passenger had come into the depot a boy in uniform snapped a velvet covered chain across the entrance. Terry turned to face Jim.

"I'm really not surprised," she said slowly. But Jim could see the disappointment in her eyes. "I guess I'd be more surprised if that guy ever showed up at the appointed time."

Arm in arm they walked through the waiting room and out a revolving door to the taxi stand. The starter had just motioned for a cab when someone came up behind Terry and lifted her by the elbows. Off her feet. When he set her down she whirled to face Fitz. He was grinning broadly from under a battered Panama hat.

"Promptness is a virtue," he began.

"Yes, a virtue you'll never achieve!" Terry laughed, and turned to Jim.

"This is IT, Jim! Senora Kimberly, may I present Fitz Turner." Jim looked up at the tall young man smilingly.

"We thought we'd missed you," she said.

"You did by just one day," Fitz explained. "I made it on the 17th instead of the 18th. I was going to cable, but I thought I might as well let it ride."

"Sweet boy!" said Terry. "By what strange quirk of memory did you show up today?"

you show up today?"

Fitz said blandly. "By expert planning I got a lot of my interview time with you when you came. But I missed you somewhat, so I came out here."

They got a cab and started back toward the city. On the way Jim said, "We'll expect you and Terry to visit us for a few days at least, before you go back to New York."

Fitz said enthusiastically, "Unless you're serious you'd better withdraw that invitation. A Turner's never been known to turn one down."

"Of course I'm serious," Jim said.

"Maybe Terry and I can count that as part of our honeymoon," Fitz said. "She's marrying me, you know, as soon as we get back to New York."

"Since when have newlyweds begun taking their honeymoons before they're married? I know I've been away for a while, but I still read the papers." Terry winked at Jim.

"Before, after, what difference does it make? Anyway, think of the money it would save me."

"There's just one flaw in your scheme," Terry smiled. "Only a technically, of course, but I can't remember promising to marry you."

"Oh, well, you will before the week is over."

"Modesty is another of his virtues," Terry said to Jim.

Jim said, "I can see that."

Fitz had an interview arranged for four that afternoon. He said goodby to Terry and Jim at the hotel, promising that they would all meet for dinner at seven. Jim and Terry spent the afternoon sauntering along Calle Florida, looking into the crystal bright shop windows. "I like your young man," Jim said. "He seems to me so typical of your country. Reckless, gay, and full of sparkling humor." Terry was pleased. "He is a good Joe," she said warmly.

It was a little before seven when Fitz knocked on Terry's door. He drew a quick breath when he saw her. She was wearing a simple white evening frock that brought out the coffee cream of her skin. Those days by the estancia pool had given her a perfect tan. Rhinestone clip and earrings sparkled in the soft light.

He whistled softly. "A dream walking," he said. "You look tonight like you might even be the estancia owner instead of a house guest."

Terry's eyes were vague and filled with dreams. "What?" she said.

Disgusted, Fitz said, "My gosh, you ARE blasé!"

"The Authority on Authorities"

A SOUND CONVENTION

YOUR CONVENTIONAL play, in third-hand position, when your partner's lead of his long suit against a No Trump game finds you with four cards of it, is your next-to-top card on the first round as an encourager and your next-to-bottom card on the second round as a completer of the high-low come on echo. This is extremely sound and valuable procedure, for it not only helps him read your holding, but leaves you with your highest and lowest cards of the suit. You are therefore in position to unblock the suit and let him run remainders, if you decide that is the thing to do, or to play for the fourth trick in the suit if that procedure and switch of return lead from you seems preferable.

That would have brought 3-Hearts from South, which a bungler could not miss, plus a cinch chance for an extra trick.

The 2-No Trumps should have been set, wasn't it, solely because East muffed the defense. When West led his diamond K and then the A, East's standard—also correct—play would have been the second-best 10 and next-to-lowest 7. Not being familiar with such efficient tactics, he remembered hearing something about "never use an honor for signalling." To avoid "wasting" his 10, he used the 7 and 4 for his high-low. That left him the Q and 10, which won the third and fourth tricks, but he couldn't get West's back in the lead to cash the 9. So the only trick the side got after that was East's heart A as South finessed clubs and walked home with four tricks in that suit, three in hearts and one in spades.

If East had signaled with the 10 and 7 on diamonds, five tricks there, plus the heart A, would have set the contract.

QUESTION: What happens to the Charter after Senate hearings?

ANSWER: Following the hearings before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, the Charter will go to the Senate for its consideration. A two-thirds majority of the senators present at the time of voting is required to ratify the Charter.

QUESTION: If a dispute involves two non-members, can the United Nations Organization interfere?

ANSWER: Yes. The Charter provides that the United Nations shall insure that non-members act in accordance with the basic obligations of the Charter for the maintenance of peace. All parties to a dispute, including non-members, will be asked to settle their differences by peaceful means. If this fails the United Nations can

Uses of Sulfonamide Drugs

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

CERTAIN new methods of treatment have been developed to bring relief to patients suffering from various disorders of the nose, throat and ears. These include the use of sulfonamide drugs, substances which stop the growth of germs, such as typhoid and penicillin and the use of a radioactive gas called radon.

They believe also that these solutions can be used with benefit in operations on the nose and throat in keeping infections from occurring, and lessening pain, swelling and discharge.

These doctors have found the radon gas useful in treating certain conditions which are contributory to deafness. In order to have good hearing, the eustachian tubes, which lead from the throat to the ear, must be open. Blocking of these tubes may be produced by adenoid tissue in the upper part of the throat. The radon gas will destroy this adenoid tissue. They have found this method of treatment especially useful in children.

As these various methods of treatment are more widely applied in nose, throat and ear disorders, it is probable that additional uses for them will be found.

CHAPTER FORTY-TWO

THE NEXT day Jim and Terry were just finishing their luncheon at the Plaza hotel. Terry glanced at her watch and looked across the table to smile at Jim.

"I want you to do something for me," she said.

"Certainly, dear," Jim nodded.

"Fitz's plane arrives at the airport in just one hour. I want you to meet him with me."

"But you don't want me along," Jim protested. "You Norte Americans don't need chaperones, and anyway, I'm sure your young man would much prefer meeting you alone."

"You don't know Fitz?" Terry laughed. "It wouldn't bother him. In fact, he'd love it. How else can I prove to him that I actually DO know a real Argentine estancia owner?"

"Exhibit A," Jim smiled to herself. "Certainly I'll go, if you really want me."

They stood at the gates marked, "To Planes," while a trickle of passengers came through from the Clipper. Terry, on tiptoes, was straining to see over the heads of the little group that were waiting to meet the incoming plane. After the last passenger had come into the depot a boy in uniform snapped a velvet covered chain across the entrance. Terry turned to face Jim. "I'm really not surprised," she said slowly. But Jim could see the disappointment in her eyes. "I guess I'd be more surprised if that guy ever showed up at the appointed time."

Arm in arm they walked through the waiting room and out a revolving door to the taxi stand. The starter had just motioned for a cab when someone came up behind Terry and lifted her, by the elbows, off her feet. When he set her down she whirled to face Fitz. He was grinning broadly from under a battered Panama hat.

"Promptness is a virtue," he began.

"Yes, a virtue you'll never achieve!" Terry laughed, and turned to Jim.

"This is it, Jim! Senora Kimberly, my I present Fitz Turner." Jim looked up at the tall young man smilingly.

"We thought we'd missed you," she said.

"You did by just one day," Fitz explained. "I made it the 17th instead of the 18th. I was going to cable, but I thought I might as well let it ride."

"Sweet boy!" said Terry. "By what strange quirk of memory did you get here?"

These may be sturdy and permanently vanquished by practical skill, inventive genius or brilliant ideas, with little support from those in influential places. Unforeseen drama, romance and personal pleasure culminate if right thinking, sound techniques and persistent effort be exercised.

YOUR STAKE IN WORLD AFFAIRS

Do you have any questions on the San Francisco United Nations Conference on International Organization? To help the people of this country better understand The United Nations Charter and their responsibilities to world organization, the American Association for the United Nations is answering questions received reflecting the tremendous interest today and always for lasting peace.

QUESTION: What happens to the Charter after Senate hearings?

ANSWER: Following the hearings before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, the Charter will go to the Senate for its consideration. A two-thirds majority of the senators present at the time of voting is required to ratify the Charter.

QUESTION: If a dispute involves two non-members, can the United Nations Organization interfere?

ANSWER: Yes. The Charter provides that the United Nations shall insure that non-members act in accordance with the basic obligations of the Charter for the maintenance of peace. All parties to a dispute, including non-members, will be asked to settle their differences by peaceful means. If this fails the United Nations can you show up today?" Fitz said blandly. "By expert planning I got a lot of my interviews already in, so I could have some time with you when you came. But I missed you somehow, so I came out here."

They got a cab and started back toward the city. On the way Jim said, "Well expect you and Terry to visit us for a few days at least, before you go back to New York."

Fitz said enthusiastically. "Unless you're serious you'd better withdraw that invitation. A Turner's never been known to turn one down."

"Of course I'm serious," Jim said.

"Maybe Terry and I can count that as part of our honeymoon," Fitz said. "She's marrying me, you know, as soon as we get back to New York."

"Since when have newlyweds begun taking their honeymoons before they're married? I know I've been away for a while, but I still read the papers," Terry winked at Jim.

"Before, after, what difference does it make? Anyway, think of the money it would save me."

"There's just one flaw in your scheme," Terry smiled. "Only a technicality, of course, but I can't remember promising to marry you."

"Oh, well, you will before the week is over."

"Modesty is another of his virtues," Terry said to Jim.

Jim said, "I can see that." Fitz had an interview arranged for four that afternoon. He said goodby to Terry and Jim at the hotel, promising that they would all meet for dinner at seven. Jim and Terry spent the afternoon sauntering along Calle Florida, looking into the crystal bright shop windows. "I like your young man," Jim said. "He seems to me so typical of your country. Restless, gay, and full of sparkling humor." Terry was pleased. "He is a good Joe," she said warmly.

It was a little before seven when Fitz knocked on Terry's door. He drew a quick breath when he saw her. She was wearing a simple white evening frock that brought out the coffee stain of her skin. Those days the estancia pool had given her a perfect tan. Rhinestone clip and earrings sparkled in the soft light.

He whistled softly. "A dream walking," he said. "You look tonight like you might even be the estancia owner instead of a house guest."

Terry's eyes were vague and filled with dreams. "What?" she said.

Disgusted, Fitz said, "My gosh, you ARE blase!"

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

A SOUND CONVENTION

YOUR CONVENTIONAL play, in third-hand position, when your partner's lead of his long suit against a No Trump game finds you with four cards of it, is your next-to-top card on the first round as an encourager and your next-to-bottom card on the second round as a completer of the high-low come on echo. This is extremely sound and valuable procedure, for it not only helps him read your holding, but leaves you with your highest and lowest cards of the suit. You are therefore in position to unblock the suit and let him run remainders, if you decide that is the thing to do, or to play for the fourth trick in the suit if that procedure and switch of return lead from you seems preferable.

That would have brought 3-Hearts from South, which a bungler could not miss, plus a clinch chance for an extra trick.

The 2-No Trumps should have been set, but wasn't, solely because East muffed the defense. When West led his diamond K and then the A, East's standard—also correct—play would have been the second-best 10 and next-to-lowest 7. Not being familiar with such efficient tactics, he remembered hearing something about "never use an honor for signalling." To avoid "wasting" his 10, he used the 7 and 4 for his high-low. That left him the Q and 10, which won the third and fourth tricks, but he couldn't get West back in the lead to cash the 9. So the only trick the side got after that was East's heart A. South finished clubs and walked home with four tricks in that suit, three in hearts and one in spades.

If East had signaled with the 10 and 7 on diamonds, five tricks there, plus the heart A, would have set the contract.

WASHINGTON Report

Writer Thinks Arnolds
Will Miss Public Life

Thoughts on Departure
Of Roberts and Hopkins

By HELEN ESSARY
Central Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Can't make up my mind whether or not it was smart for Thurman Arnold to resign as justice of the United States court of appeals to go into private law practice with $25,000 a year retainer.

Undoubtedly there is a greater financial future in private law practice than in sitting on the honorable court, but I hate to see a personality as vivid as the Wyoming professor hidden in a common-place job.

It was so entertaining to watch the brilliant Arnold throw himself dramatically at trust busting and a dozen other crusades. Arnold and his charming Frances will soon be bored outside the aura of official life.

Some people say the resignation of the justice is a step back to Wyoming and the race for a senatorship from Laramie. I am inclined to believe this possibility. I can't imagine Thurman, with his feet on a desk, behind a legal shingle-on-the-door, patiently waiting for clients to ask for advice.

Thurman Arnold
I'll MISS THE NEWLY-RESIGNED Justice Owen Roberts sitting on the supreme court in an Olympian row of the United States. I'll also miss meeting the justice, with his grandchildren, in the elevator of our apartment building. The last time I saw Mrs. Roberts she had paused in the apartment lobby to help Betty Fulbright, wife of the Arkansas senator, adjust roller skates on the Fulbright daughters. I was on my way to a newspaper tea in honor of Mrs. Truman.

"Wish I were going with you," said Mrs. Roberts. "You'll be sure to have fun." Mrs. Roberts sighed a little. "It does get a little monotonous, sometimes, having to associate principally with members of our own profession. Why do people think the judiciary wants to stay remote from the rest of the world?"

So you see, the supreme court had its lonely moments. It looks like a place in heaven to the student in a law school. But it is an honor that demands a price.

● NOW TO HARRY HOPKINS' NEW JOB. So he is going into needle work or something! Officially, he will be labeled arbitrator of the ladies' coat and suit industry in New York.

Imagine—the man who was closest friend and adviser to one of the most extraordinary of all American presidents, mediator between Stalin and Churchill, succeeding to the post held by the airy Jimmy Walker, one time handshaking mayor of New York!

How clever President Truman is! He used Hopkins for whatever value he had to the new administration, gave him a polite salvo of applause for his successful conversations with Stalin. And now Hopkins steps out—!

Mr. Truman, who used to seem a mild fellow until you looked at his tight mouth and square jaw, may be one of the toughest presidents the country ever had. He means to run his end of the government of the United States and the large area they include as he sees fit without regard to prejudice or Roosevelt customs. Soon there won't be a familiar face in the executive branch of the government except that of Mr. Truman and Secretary Byrnes.

● HUNDREDS OF RESERVE OFFICERS in the Army and Navy are looking for new berths as the day of detachment from the military approaches.

Within another month there will be about half the present number of uniforms on the Washington streets at 4:31 each work-day afternoon. (It takes less than a minute to escape from the desks when the closing second arrives.)

Many of the reserve officers are settling in Washington. Capitalitis is a germ that generally grows into a permanent affliction. Have you ever heard of anybody deliberately leaving Washington after a taste of its hodge-podge whirl?

Hare-Hollenback Rites Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Hare, West Water street, are announcing the marriage of their daughter, Claribel, to James R. Hollenback, United States Navy, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Hollenback, Columbus.

The marriage was read July 13 in Greenup, Ky. Mr. Hollenback has been in the Southwest Pacific for 20 months.

The first three months of 1945 found Seattle standing seventh on the list of 20 leading cities in the nation in value of building permits with a total of $3,018,160 compared with $4,163,340 for the same period in 1944 when it was also in seventh place. Tacoma was 13th on the list with $1,749,217.

BREWERS TAKE 1 1/2 GAME LEAD; BIRDS IN SPLIT

Indianapolis dropped a game and a half behind the Milwaukee Brewers, defending champions and current American Association leaders, today after splitting a double bill with Louisville.

The Indians won the first game, 7 to 0, but were turned back in the second, 5 to 3, by the third-place Louisville team.

At Kansas City, Ben Cardoni pitched the Brewers to a 3 to 1 first game win over the Blues, and Bill Davis, a club newcomer, limited the host team to three hits in the second, which Milwaukee won 2 to 0.

Toledo and Columbus divided a doubleheader, the first going to the Mud Hens, 4 to 3, and Columbus romping to an 18 to 0 victory in the nightcap. Arthur Lopatka turned in a two-hit pitching performance while his teammates staged their second game scoring spree. The Red Birds brought in nine runs in the second inning alone.

The Minneapolis Millers defeated St. Paul, 4 to 2, in the first game of their twin bill. The Saints tallied two unearned runs in the ninth inning, however, to win the second, 2 to 0. St. Paul's Buck Weaver was credited with the victory.

NELSON HAILED SOFTBALL PLAY AS GREATEST IN WILL RESUME AT GOLF'S HISTORY TED LEWIS PARK

DAYTON, O., July 16—For the first time in his career, Byron Nelson of Toledo, O., was acclaimed by most of his fellow journeymen today as the greatest golfer the game has ever known.

Such golfing veterans as Denny Shute, former British open champion; Craig Wood, duration national open titlist, and Fred Corcoran, tournament manager of the Professional Golfers' Association—to mention a few—all were strong in their stand that regardless of Bobby Jones, Walter Hagen and even the immortal Harry Vardon—Nelson is the all-time tops.

Nelson, now 33 and a veteran of 12 years of professional tournament golf, won that acclaim yesterday. For he climaxed the greatest winning streak in the history of the sport by beating Sammy Byrd of Detroit, 4 and 3, to win the 27th national P. G. A. tournament. In doing it, he left Byrd's dreams of eight years scattered over the rolling Moraine country club course. Yet Byrd today was one of the first of Nelson's fellow professionals to rank him as the greatest.

"They talk about Nelson's woods and his irons," Byrd said. "But he is without a doubt the greatest putter I've ever seen and when you add that to all the other attributes you arrive at one conclusion—he's the best."

LAMB COMPLICATES COUNT

GILLETTE, Wyo.—The idea of counting the legs of a herd of cattle and dividing by four to find the number of animals wouldn't work very well in a herd of sheep owned by M. J. Hannum near here. And counting tails wouldn't do either. A freak lamb with eight legs and two tails was born in the herd recently. The animal did not live, however.

Last Lincoln Pass

EAST BURKE, Vt. — The last pass issued by President Abraham Lincoln before his death is stored at the Burke Mountain Club here. It reads: "Allow the bearer, A. B. Darling, to pass to, and visit Mobile, if, and when that city shall be in our possession. A. Lincoln, April 13, 1865."

Lincoln was assassinated the following evening.

CUBS DRIVING TOWARD TITLE; TIGERS FALTER

Reds Win Twice From Phils; Cards Drop Two Games To Boston Braves

NEW YORK, July 16—The Chicago Cubs were doing their part today toward making history of a decade ago repeat itself, but the Detroit Tigers were falling down on the job.

It was just 10 years ago that Chicago and Detroit met in a momentous world series and the Cubs, who lost out then, make no secret of the fact that the Tigers are the team they'd like to tackle again, that is provided that the series is played, and that the Cubs get into it themselves.

They made it apparent yesterday that they are going to be hard to beat out. They stretched their first place lead to four full games with a double victory over the Giants at Chicago, 5 to 3 and 7 to 2. Phil Cavarretta, who was just a kid breaking in when the 1935 series was held, maintained his pace as the Cubs' top slugger, getting a homer, a double, two singles and two walks and batting in three runs in the two games. Hy Vandenberg limited the Giants to three hits in the opener and Hank Wyse put enough outs between the 11 hits he allowed in the second game to win his 12th decision.

Meanwhile the Tigers, losing, 5 to 4, at New York, were in their worst slump of the year, dropping four games in a row for the first time. They haven't won a game since leaving Detroit. Ace Pitcher Alton Benton wasn't charged with the defeat but he was hit suddenly before being relieved. Nick Etten tagging him for a two-run homer in the third. Bob Eaton put the Tigers back in front with a grand slam homer in the fourth, but they couldn't hold it. The Yanks got three more in the sixth, relief pitcher Walter Wilson walking in the deciding out. The second game was rained out.

The second place Senators had their double bill with the Browns rained out at Washington, but moved within a game and a half of the lead as the Tigers lost. The White Sox-Athletics double bill at Philadelphia also was rained out. Boston won a rain-shortened six-inning game from the visiting Indians, 6 to 4, to hold a third place tie with the Yankees, two and a half games behind the leading Tigers. Relief Pitcher Francis (Red) Barrett worked an inning to gain an easy win, his third of the season. Eddie Lake led a four-run "victory" inning for the Red Sox in the fifth with a homer, the rally more than offsetting three runs by the Indians in their half.

The Braves cooperated with the Cubs in the National by upsetting the Cardinals in a double header at St. Louis, 3 to 1 and 5 to 3. That ran their record over the world champions to five straight and eight victories in 12 starts this season. Johnny Hutchings stopped the Red Birds with six hits in the opener, while Mort Cooper came through in a relief role to beat his old colleagues in the 10-inning afterpiece. Tommy Holmes hit a homer in the opener and Carden Gillenwater batted in four runs with a triple, double and single to pace the Braves in the second.

The Pirates gave the Dodgers two sound beatings at Pittsburgh, 9 to 1 and 15 to 3, as Truett (Rip) Sewell and Ken Gables marked up easy wins. Bob Elliott hit a homer, a triple, a double and a single to lead the 19-hit Pirate attack on the Dodgers in the second game. Bill Salkeld hit a homer and a single in the opener, Dixie Walker and Babe Herman got Dodger homers.

Bucky Walters and Vernon Kennedy capitalized on the chance to improve their records, pitching the Reds to a pair of victories over the Phillies at Cincinnati, 6 to 1 and 3 to 1. Charley Schanz, loser in the first game, tied a modern major record by hitting four batters with pitched balls, two in succession to force in the Reds' final run. Veteran slugger Jimmy Foy made his debut as a pitcher, relieving Schanz and allowing no hits in three innings.

THREE-YEAR-OLD CROWN VACANT AS PAVOT FAILS

NEW YORK, July 16—The three-year-old thoroughbred field was without an heir apparent to the 1945 championship today after the previous top contender, Pavot, failed miserably to perform up to his standard in earlier races.

Pavot, the two-year-old champion of 1944, had a chance to take a firm position for three-year-old laurels Saturday, but failed by running last, 29 lengths behind the lightly regarded Wildfire, in the $50,000 added Dwyer stakes at Aqueduct.

NEWS Behind the NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

Is the holy Russian empire coming back into the world under new management? With no noticeable expansion in holiness?

Along with this visible extension of actual empire, Russia also is proceeding to extend her hegemony over other states, inserting friendly presidents, cabinet ministers and otherwise gaining control which is visible only in results—trade preferences, special interests, alliances, etc.

Messrs. Truman and Byrnes will have to develop and present a new American foreign policy to deal with this basic matter, now the most important underlying question of the world, and assert affirmative American leadership in the world. I do not believe they favor war to stop Russia—or appeasement.

No popular sentiment for war exists in this country, but an inconsequential minority is loudly promoting appeasement. In past diplomacy we have tried both war and appeasement. Neither method is popular as a course now.

If Russia forces us we could be required to adopt pressure politics in self-defense, but this would be popular only if Russia does not stop her present course.

What our people plainly want is above-board dealing and justice for all people (not just dictators, empires and hegemonies), and they want our officials to pursue this without fearful appeasement on the one hand or belligerency on the other.

They want us now, I believe, to assume the leadership responsibility which we profess. I think this will be the Truman-Byrnes course in Berlin.

BREWERS TAKE 1 1/2 GAME LEAD; BIRDS IN SPLIT

Indianapolis dropped a game and a half behind the Milwaukee Brewers, defending champions and current American Association leaders, today after splitting a double bill with Louisville.

The Indians won the first game, 7 to 0, but were turned back in the second, 8 to 5, by the third-place Louisville team.

At Kansas City, Ben Cardoni pitched the Brewers to a 3 to 1 first game win over the Blues, and Bill Davis, a club newcomer, limited the host team to three hits in the second, which Milwaukee won 2 to 0.

Toledo and Columbus divided a doubleheader, the first going to the Mud Hens, 4 to 3, and Columbus romping to an 18 to 0 victory in the nightcap. Arthur Lopatka turned in a two-hit pitching performance while his teammates staged their second game scoring spree. The Red Birds brought in nine runs in the second inning alone.

The Minneapolis Millers defeated St. Paul, 4 to 2, in the first game of their twin bill. The Saints tallied two unearned runs in the ninth inning, however, to win the second, 2 to 0. St. Paul's Buck Weaver was credited with the victory.

LAMB COMPLICATES COUNT

GILLETTE, Wyo.—The idea of counting the legs of a herd of cattle and dividing by four to find the number of animals wouldn't work very well in a herd of sheep owned by M. J. Hannum near here.

And counting tails wouldn't do either. A freak lamb with eight legs and two tails was born in the herd recently. The animal did not live, however.

the "Suspense" broadcast of July 26, when an all-star radio cast will present the super-mystery yarn, "Sound and Fury."

There's a new "Henry Aldrich" for ever-popular "The Aldrich Family." Seventeen-year-old Raymond Ives won the coveted role over 200 young aspirants. Raymond is the fourth to portray the role created by Cliff Goldsmith. The three predecessors, Ezra Stone, Norman Tokar, and Dick Jones, are all now in the U. S. Army.

VICE-ADM. DANIEL E. BARBEY, affectionately known throughout the southwest Pacific area as "Uncle Dan," predicts that the Japanese will be beaten by our forces in the summer of 1946. Barbey, who has directed 56 amphibious landings—more than any other man in the world—few from Manila to San Francisco and he will go from there to Washington, D. C., for conferences. "Whenever we choose to land, we can land anywhere on Japan or China," the vice-admiral told reporters. (International) immediately. Story line, written by Kathleen Norris, and the cast, headed by Joan Alexander and Dick Kollman, continue as usual.

During the time that Joe (The Man in Black) Kearns, of the Thursday "Suspense" airshow, takes a month's vacation from the program, the narrator's macabre mantle will be worn by Frank Graham, well-known Hollywood radio actor.

Carol Bruce, who sings with Curt Massey on the new series, "Sunday on the N-K Ranch," has given up one of her hobbies—the saving of scripts from each of her many broadcasts, and scenarios from the pictures she's made in Hollywood. The singer turned all the old scripts, together with a stack of old sheet music, over to the national paper drive. Her contribution weighed more than 350 pounds!

The acting bug is having a busy season in Hollywood these days, biting script clerks who become actresses, and announcers who are turning into actors overnight. Latest victim is Producer William Spier, ace air director of the "Suspense" thriller programs, who recently portrayed a role on an Arch Oboler network drama, and will appear again as an actor in

Gardens, Lawns, Pastures Freshen As Cool Weather Continues

RAIN AND COLD FAIL TO HAMPER WHEAT HARVEST

Corn Growth Retarded By Lack Of Sunshine; River Up To 7.65

Circleville gardens and lawns took on a fresh green look Monday and Pickaway county farmers did their morning chores with coats on as July's "cold" weather spell continued.

The official thermometer stood at 54 degrees Monday morning following the weekend showers which brought new life to gardens, lawns, hay and pasture fields and caused the Scioto river to start rising again. Sunday's high temperature was 72 degrees.

Only .78 inch of rain was recorded in Circleville but heavier rains fell to the north. A total of 2.16 inches was reported Saturday at Columbus. At 7 a. m. Monday the river stood at 7.65 feet here, the highest point since the early June "flood."

Corn, planted late because of floods, was not growing Monday, because of the cool weather. At this time of year corn needs plenty of hot weather, farmers state.

The rain and cool weather has not hurt the wheat harvest, now in full swing. In fact, some farming authorities state this is good wheat weather. The weeds are growing more slowly in the cool weather than if hot weather had followed the showers.

More wheat is being combined in the county than in past years. The shortage of farm help is given as the biggest reason for this trend. Fewer men are needed to combine wheat than when the threshing machine is used. According to reports about 20 new combines have been sold to Pickaway farmers this year, reducing by many the acres which are harvested by threshing machines.

CANNER IN USE AT YELLOWBUD

Public Demonstration To Be Held At School Building Tuesday Night

It is expected that Miss Mary Cornwall, formerly state supervisor of home canneries, will be in charge of the canning demonstration at the Yellowbud school Tuesday.

All interested persons are invited to this demonstration which will start at 8 p. m. fast time. Mrs. Dick Tootle, local instructor, said Monday that the canning equipment has been in pretty general use the past week and it is planned to have it available for use on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays either afternoons or evenings during the Summer.

Already more than 400 cans of fruits and vegetables have been processed at this school. Friday evening between 5:30 and 10 p. m. five bushels apples, three bushels green beans, two bushels peaches and some other vegetables were processed.

This is one of 30 canners of this kind in use in the state of Ohio. They were formerly placed by the Federal Government for the preservation of food stuff and salaries were paid for two persons to operate them. That legislation has been withdrawn however but the canners are now available only if someone will act as instructor. Mrs. Tootle now acts in that capacity and urges all interested persons to attend the demonstration next Tuesday evening.

Anyone at all, Mrs. Tootle says may bring their food to the canner and at a very nominal cost per can may process it. The canner is available on the days mentioned above and by calling Mrs. Tootle arrangements may be made to care for food at a given time.

As many as eight families may use the canner at a particular time. It is advisable, Mrs. Tootle says, to have beans snapped and peas prepared before bringing them to the canner as it saves much valuable time and space at the school. Do not put apples, peaches or tomatoes however, Mrs. Tootle advises, as the machine does all that.

Co-operation between the Army and civilians seems to have no end. The town of Dublin, Va., had a breakdown in its community water supply. So the Army came through by supplying water to the town temporarily from the new River Ordnance plant's system.

Take Another Look

(If you think Japan can't last)

JAPAN has been thought of generally as a short-war nation—lacking the resources for a long one. But take a look at just one Japanese hide-away—Manchuria. The Japs grabbed it from China in 1931. It's more than twice as big as Germany. About 60 times as big as Massachusetts. It has one of the richest soils in the world—producing vast quantities of wheat, corn, soy beans, rice, food. It is rich in coal, magnesite, iron, metals. It is forested with great areas of trees for lumber. What have the Japs been doing in this lush and ample land? They have been hustling—for 14 years. They have industrialized Manchuria beyond belief. They have developed its railways, its vast forests, its great mines. They have built huge power plants and factories and mills. They have made Manchuria a mighty arsenal. From its mills pour foods and shoes and clothing. From its factories roll planes and guns and tanks. How much? How many? No one can say. But enough to keep Japan at war for years. And this is just one Japanese hide-away—just one bustling corner of an empire that is 5,000 miles long and 3,000 miles wide. Just one of Japan's arsenals—twice as big as all Germany. Can Japan fight a long war? Well—we leave it to you.

And says General Joseph W. Stilwell—
"The Jap is a shrewd soldier and a tricky enemy. His fighting tricks are countless. He has been learning them for years under the constant, unrelenting system that makes him such a dangerous opponent. The Jap is a tough, determined soldier. Japs will not surrender in masses like the Germans. We must even count on fanatical opposition from the civilian population."
